blooms – a vision that goes far beyond sustainability

Eating healthily is more than just an attitude towards life. The Dolder Grand is unveiling a new al fresco lifestyle restaurant in June. Situated on the edge of a forest and amid vegetable beds, herbs and fruit bushes, “blooms” serves up a relaxing outdoor dining experience to savour. Heiko Nieder and his team prepare light, refined creations – vegetarian, vegan, organic, regional and seasonal – in the garden restaurant.

Following the successful opening of the MIKURIYA omakase restaurant in late December 2022, blooms sees Culinary Director & Chef Fine Dining Heiko Nieder further adding to the culinary diversity on offer at the Dolder Grand – a unique al fresco experience in natural surroundings for hotel guests and the people of Zurich and its environs.

“We source ingredients and ideas from our kitchen garden – an array of vibrant colours, flavours and tactile sensations. Many of the delights on the plate come straight from our own garden. Otherwise, we source top-quality products from local producers,” says Nieder. General Manager Markus Granelli adds: “blooms goes beyond a culinary offering – it embodies a lifestyle. Now with four restaurants in addition to its seasonal pop-ups, the Dolder Grand is a culinary destination in Zurich.”

Designed in the style of a terrace, the kitchen garden has space for 36 guests, with awnings sheltering the tables and the kitchen. The light, modern and simple vegetarian and vegan dishes are served in the flavourful style of “The Restaurant” – accompanied by summer garden vibes and a glass of rosé.

The blooms restaurant is set to be open from June to September, weather permitting.
